KILLED LAST BUFFALO.

In 1875 the Sole Survivor Was Shot by Farmer.

I notice that Mr. Lewton killed a buffalo in Hall County in 1873 and thinks this to be among the last killed in Ne oraska. My father moved to Plun Creek (now Lexington), Dawson County in April, 1873, says a writer in Forest and

He settled on some land about six miles northwest of town. The fall of that year in- we camped on the farm in putting up ou hay. There was not a house within sight and it was not unusual to see deer, elk antelope, and often buffalo in the morning between our tent and the hills to the north, about three miles. Of course in those days we never left the house fo any distance without our guns, both rifle

In 1875 I, with my brother, was break two miles west of the original homestead. We saw a herd of about one hundred buffalo traveling toward the Platte River to the south. Taking my hunting horse out of the plow and my gun from the wagon, I gave chase. The buffalo circled oward the east, then north toward the hills from whence they came, and at a point about two miles east of the ranches of Kreitz and Cramers I overtook them, and picking out what afterward proved in the summer or early fall of 1875.
